Now Comes Bootleg Money
An Inter-Language Wanted
Vare's Better Chance
Dementia Americana

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

WE have with us now "bootleg money," worrying the financiers that rest in Wall street.

Bootleg money comes from the West to share the plunder when "call money" is jacked up to seven or eight per cent, as at present.

• • •

FINANCIAL bootleggers cut the price a little and take some of the cream from those milking the stock gamblers in the holy name of "conservative speculation." New York's Clearing House Association held a special meeting yesterday to combat the evil.

• • •

AT least a billion dollars has been sent to Wall Street from outside. You can't imagine how that hurt inside gougers that want the profits on usury for themselves.

• • •

DELEGATIONS of college men from different parts of the United States will record their voices on talking machines that scientists may study "American dialects."

The main thing is that all of them are understood from New York to San Francisco.

In Europe, traveling 3,000 miles from Oslo to the southeast, you would hear Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, German, Czechoslovakian, Hungarian, Roumanian, Bulgarian, Turkish, Greek, and in Egypt Arabic, 12 different languages in a 3,000-mile trip, and not hear one-half the languages that Europe speaks.

• • •

EUROPE feels the need of an "inter-language." The sensible thing would be to make that language English, that all waiters and clerks need, and nearly all educated Europeans know.

National pride prevents that. So why not use Latin, once the universal learned language making it possible for Erasmus to speak to Henry the Eighth; for all learned men in Europe to talk to each other through their books? Nothing could be more hideous than a made to order language.

• • •

SENATOR VARE, most powerful politician in Pennsylvania, elected to the senate but not seated, is felled by a stroke of paralysis.

If he recovers, as doubtless he will, the senate in all probability will give him his seat. Such is human nature. Even Jim Reed of Missouri, relentless fighter, would find it hard to reject a man with one-half of his body paralyzed.

That shows how far we have progressed beyond the wolves. With them a wounded comrade is immediately eaten.

• • •

DELPHIN DELMAS, Thaw's lawyer in the big murder trial, is dead. He will be remembered for his invention of the expression, "Dementia Americana," to describe Thaw's state of mind.

Delmas, who lived and died in California, was the greatest criminal lawyer since the days of John McSweeney and the Star Route trials.

• • •

But Republican members of New York's legislature know that Governor Smith can speak at least one language plainly. The four languages that Governor Smith is supposed by the French editor to speak are Irish, German, Yiddish and English.

He knows a few words of the first three and all of the fourth.

AN old gentleman, aged 104, arrived from Lithuania two days ago to see this country. He said he didn't believe in "spending all your life in one place," so he only lived 104 years in Lithuania. He danced a jig for reporters, said he had given up tobacco eight years ago, but "never found that liquor ever hurt anybody."

He will change his mind if he tries certain brands on sale in this country.

ANCIENT manuscripts are supposed to show that King Herod, not Pilate, ordered the crucifixion of Jesus. Herod was bad enough without trying to make his record worse.

Crucifixion was distinctly a Roman punishment, as many Christian martyrs learned with sorrow.

It was never a Jewish punishment. Jewish law stoned the condemned criminal.

Jerusalem was ruled by a Roman governor, Pilate, at the time of the crucifixion, and the Roman punishment was adopted.

BURGLARS GET TRUCKLOAD OF MERCHANDISE

Make Big Cleanup in Raid on Stock of Local Kroger Store

ENTER FRONT DOOR

Cigarets and Groceries Included in Bulky Loot Carted Away Last Night

Burglars raided the Kroger grocery store at Bennett and Latourette sts., last night and hauled away almost enough merchandise to start them up in business.

Police who investigated the burglary state that a motor truck was probably used to cart away the loot, which was listed by the store manager as follows:

Bulky Load

Fifty cartons of cigarets, two cases of canned milk; sixteen 25-pound sacks of sugar; fifteen 25-pound sacks of flour; a bushel of peaches and 60 pounds of oleomargerine.

Evidence of the robbery was discovered by Patrolman A. W. McColly when he passed the store shortly before 5 o'clock this morning and found the front door open.

According to the report made by the officer the lock of the door was out of repair and the door had not been securely fastened.

Estimated Value

James Sanderson, manager of the store, estimates the value of the stolen goods at about $80.

This is on record as one of a series of burglaries committed at local Kroger stores within the last year. It is thought that all of the jobs are probably the work of the same gang. No clues have been found, police state.

MARION RESIDENT OVERCOME BY HEAT

R. R. Dumm, Pearl st., Listed as First Victim of Torrid Weather

First reported victim of the heat wave now gripping Marion is R. R. Dumm, who was overcome about 11:30 o'clock this morning on the rear porch at his home, 355 Pearl st. His condition is believed to be serious.

Mr. Dumm was removed from his home to that of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Fulk, 480 Blaine av., about noon today in the W. C. Boyd invalid car.

With only one exception, yesterday was the hottest day experienced by Marionites this year. The mercury soared to 91 degrees, the high mark for the year set July 21 during a seige of hot weather.

Today's temperature promised to be equally as high or higher, since the temperature at noon today stood at 87 degrees, while yesterday at noon the mercury had only reached the 81-degree mark.

After gentle showers last night, when .02 of an inch of rain fell, the red line fell to 70 degrees, the high mark for a year ago on the same date. At that time the mercury fell to 54 degrees in the night.

A break in what threatened to be another heat wave is predicted for Saturday in the forecast of "slightly cooler with local thundershowers tonight and Saturday."

FATHER, DAUGHTER ARE TAKEN BY DEATH

Grim Reaper Visits Former Marion Family Twice in Few Days

Called east on account of the death of one relative, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lindsay, Windsor at., postponed their return trip because of the death of another. While Mrs. Lindsay and other relatives were arranging funeral services for Mrs. Frank Royer, Baltimore, Md., J. A. Emptage, father of Mrs. Lindsay and the late Mrs. Royer, lay critically ill at St. John's hospital, Cleveland. His death occurred at 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, one day before the funeral of his daughter.

Mr. Emptage had suffered from a complication of diseases for more than a year. Both he and his daughter formerly resided in this city.

Surviving Mr. Emptage are his widow, two daughters and four sons.

Funeral services for Mr. Emptage will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at his late home, 2625 West 116th st., Cleveland, burial in that city. Miss Royer, Baltimore, today. Funeral was held [illegible]

DIES AT GRAVE

[illegible] Dies in Pulpit [illegible] Son of Man

Woman Becomes Assistant Pastor of Marion Church

BELIEVED to be Marion's first woman pastor, Miss Velma Schneller, of Aurora, Ill., this week assumed her duties as assistant pastor of Calvary Evangelical church.

A former evangelistic worker, Miss Schneller come here well equipped to aid in the work of one of Marion's largest churches. While she will not be heard from the pulpit, Miss Schneller will aid the Rev. E. Radebaugh, pastor, in personal work among the church members, in young people's work and in the music of the church.

The new woman pastor is an accomplished pianist and vocalist, having formerly served in that capacity as a member of the W. E. Pet'ticord evangelistic party of Columbus. During her four years' experience in the evangelistic field as a member of the Petticord troupe, Miss Schneller appeared at Calvary church several times in revival periods.

In addition to her work with W. E. Petticord, Miss Schneller spent twe years alone in evangelistic work. Prior to that time she served assistant pastorates at the Evangelical churches of Findlay and Canton. She was in Findlay two years and in Canton, one year.

MISS VELMA SCHNELLER

PASTOR'S BODY FOUND IN BAY BY TUG CREW

Search for the Rev. F. P. George Had Been Abandoned

The body of Rev. Frank L. George, pastor of the Herman Street Community Church here, was found about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon floating under the surface of the water of Sandusky Bay at a point about five miles west of Sandusky, according to a telephone message received from that city by The Star.

The body, which was found by the crew of a tug which was cruising near a new bridge being built over an inlet from the bay, had drifted approximately four miles from the point where the Rev. Mr. George was drowned. The body is now at the Marquart & Keller undertaking parlors and will probably be brought to Marion Saturday.

Finding of the body followed receipt of a report that life guards had abandoned their search, believing that nothing could be accomplished until the body of the drowning victim rose to the surface.

Search for the body, which continued all of Wednesday and Thursday, was made extremely difficult due to the fact that the Rev. Mr. George's two companions, the Rev. E. J. Haldeman, of Toledo, and the Rev. George Repp, of Green Springs, O., who survived the tragedy, were unable to give searchers a clue as to the location of the three when the local pastor drowned.

Storm Arouses Hope

Hope that the body might drift ashore today was expressed by coast guard officers when the thunder storm, which has been threatning since yesterday in the bay region, showed signs of breaking this afternoon. Severe thunder and electrical storms often cause bodies of drowned persons to rise to the surface, it is said.

That the body would drift toward land rather than into open water was the opinion expressed today by those familiar with the bay region.

Family Remains

Mrs. George, widow of the drowned man, and her three sons, Raymond, Francis and Lloyd, are remaining at White's Landing in the hope that the body will be found soon. They went to White's Landing in company with the Rev. Mr. George, Tuesday, having planned a vacation trip.

The Rev. Mr. George was drowned about 5 o'clock Wednesday morning after clinging for more than 11 hours to the overturned motor boat in which he and his two companions had gone on a fishing trip the afternoon before. A passing tug picked up the survivors about 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, an hour after Mr. George dropped to the bottom of the lake from exhaustion.

EXHUME BODY OF YOUTH FOR PROBE

Officials Investigate Death of Burrel Hemmerly in Post Mortem

FIND COURSE OF BULLET

Rumors Concerning Shooting Responsible for Examination by Coroner

Upper Sandusky, Aug. 3—The body of Burrel Hemmerly, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hemmerly, of Jackson township, who died Sunday, Sept. 4, 1927 after having apparently accidentally shot himself by falling on his rifle, was exhumed yesterday and a post mortem examination made by Coroner L. W. Nans, and several physicians.

It was revealed by the examination yesterday that the bullet had taken a straight course through the head and lodged at the base of the brain. Formerly it had been thought to have entered the temple and passed downward in the lower jaw. Circulation of various amounts of the shooting and rumors concerning it was responsible for the examination yesterday.

The story at the time of the accident was that Hemmerly, standing in the shed of his home, was waving a rifle at some passing friends when it discharged. His friends saw him fall and came to his assistance. He died a short time later. His parents were away at the time of the accident.

Harpster Couple Observes Anniversary of Marriage

HARPSTER, Aug. 3—In the presence of only immediate friends and relatives, a rare occasion was celebrated here Tuesday when the sixty-third wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cross was observed at their home.

The couple was married in Findlay, July 31, 1865, and since then have resided in Ohio. The couple spent the early part of their married life in Hancock county and moved to Harpster in Sept., 1886.

Mr. Cross is 86 years of age and his wife who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Walters, late residents of Findlay, is 78 years of age. Thirteen years ago the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Harpster.

Mr. and Mrs. Cross have eight children living. They also have 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Their children and families all reside in Ohio.

They are both lifelong members of the Methodist church Mr. Cross has been a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge for the past 57 years.

KIWANIANS HEAR TALK BY PHONE INSPECTOR

Miss Bennett Tells of Improvements Made at Mt. Gilead Exchange

Mt. Gilead, Aug. 3—Miss Myrtle Bennett, who is now inspecting the local telephone system and taking complaints addressed the local Kiwanis club in its regular Thursday meeting in the Moreen room of the Globe hotel. She chose as the topic for her discussion, "My Experiences and Duties as a Telephone Operator."

She explained to the club that she called each subscriber in the system and took his or her complaint. After making out a trouble sheet, she turned the complaints over to the trouble man, who immediately made the necessary changes.

She stated that telephone operators' offices here are now better equipped and more comfortable than ever, and that working conditions were much improved. This, she claimed, makes for better service, more courteous treatment of subscribers, and leaves the operators more contented.

She explained how the rooms were equipped and how a 15-minute rest period is allowed occasionally on a busy day.

73 DEFENDANTS ARE NAMED IN LAWSUIT

Suit Grows Out of Bankruptcy Case of Bucyrus Equity Co.

Bucyrus, Aug. 3—Seventy-three defendants were named in a lawsuit, involving one of the highest number of principals ever filed in Crawford county, here yesterday in the common pleas court.

The suit grew out of the bankruptcy case of the defunct Bucyrus Equity Company, a firm organized in 1920, at which time it entered into the business of buying and selling hay, grain, livestock and other commodities.

The seven plaintiffs in the suit are six former directors of the defunct firm and one administrator of a deceased director.

The plaintiffs charge the defendants with not having executed an agreement entered into between the directors and the stockholders shortly after the firm had been organized.

SEEKS DAMAGES

$50,000 Asked by Crestline Man in Suit Against Railroad

BUCYRUS, Aug. 3—Alleging that an accident which occurred while working at the Crestline roundhouse, was the cause of his being affected with epileptic seizures, John Perkins, Crestline, filed suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad seeking $50,000 damages, in common pleas court, yesterday.

Perkins avers he climbed a ladder to wipe off an engine following a foreman's orders, and fell off. He charges that he was not warned that the ladder was not spiked at the ends and that the floor was oily and slippery.

DOGS KILL SIXTEEN SHEEP AT WYANDOT

County Officials Making Search for Early Morning Assailants

NINE ANIMALS CRIPPLED

Neighbors Drive Attacking Canines Off with Rifle Fire

Wyandot, Aug. 3—Wyandot county officials are today searching for dogs who killed and crippled sheep of two flocks near here, early this morning.

An investigation of the casualties today revealed that the dogs had killed 16 and crippled nine of the animals. Eleven of the animals were owned by John Graham and the remaining two sheep were the property of F. W. Jarp. Both of the sheep owners reside near Wyandot.

Neighbors discovered the dogs attacking the sheep early this morning and drove them away by firing at them with rifles. The dogs attacked the sheep in a pasture near Walnut lane.

A month ago 18 animals, owned by residents near here, were killed by dogs according to officials.

LAND VALUES DECLINE REVEALED IN REPORT

Crawford County Acre Valuation Shows Slump of $27.55

Bucyrus, Aug. 3—The present value of Crawford county land shows a $27.55 per acre slump as compared to last year, according to County Recorder H. O. Sharp's annual real estate report made public yesterday.

Reason for the slump, Sharp says, was due to the fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad company purchased a large tract of land between Leesville and Crestline paying a price in excess to the true market valuation in order to secure the properties.

BROWN FAMILY HOLDS RENION AT CAREY

Carey, Aug. 3—The Brown family reunion was held at Carey Waterworks park Sunday, with 60 in attendance from Findlay, Detroit, Alliance, Fostoria, Upper Sandusky, Arcadin and Carey. The following officers were elected for 1929: president Fred Powell; vice president, Ralph Brown; secretary and treasurer, Dewey Powell. The reunion will be held at the park the last Sunday in July next year.

CONTRACTS LET

Awards Made for State Road Work in Marion County District

State Highway Director Harry J. Kirk yesterday announced contract awards for road improvement contracts in Marion county and surrounding territory.

The awards were made in connection with projects in various sections of the state to cost more than $2,000,000.

Marion and Union counties; surface treating parts of state routes 112, 116 and 128; C. B. Weymouth, Bellefontaine, total bid, $10,226.22.

Delaware county; waterbound macadam paving on state route 241; C. O. Baldwin, Hillsboro, total bid, $52,151.00.

Most of us don't mind being burlesqued if it makes us laugh.

TWO EXTRAS

Operation Discloses Three Tonsils in LaRue Boy's Throat

A SOMEWHAT commonplace operation which turned out to be unusual in the extreme was performed by a Marion physician at City hospital, Wednesday. Three unusually large and separate tonsils were removed from the throat of Lowell Secord, of LaRue.

While "split" tonsils are considered ordinary three individual tonsils in one throat is said to be decidedly unusual.

KANSAS "LINCOLN" LOOKING FOR VOTES

Topeka, Kan., July —The campaign ballyhoo of the great American candidate has taken many and various forms in the past, but D. A. N. Chase, of Pleasanton, Kan., who aspires to be the Republican nominee for the governorship has what is believed to be a unique talking point.

In this stronghold of Republicism, where men are vice presidential nominees, the fact that Mr. Chase has a strong physical resemblance to Abraham Lincoln, is expected to harvest many votes for him from admirers of the great Republican president.

A wife's duty when her husband is showing off in public, is to help him.

To make a village of 500 people look picturesque to an artist's eye would cost $500,000. That's one reason villages don't look that way.

Biblical Drama To Be

SCHEDULED SUNDAY NIGHT

Radio Program Feature

Noah is the hero of the Biblical drama to be broadcast over the National system at 9:45 o'clock Sunday night.

Occupying the center of the stage from start to finish of William Ford Manley's dramalogue, Noah's steadfastness and courage in face of mockery is brought out in bold relief against the dilettante foppery of his own sons, Ham, Shem and Japheth.

"The Nutcracker Suite," made up of characteristic sketches by Tschaikowsky, will be played by the National Symphony orchestra during the program to be heard through the NBC system stations at 9:15 o'clock Sunday night.

The Mendelssohn "Quartet in F Minor," requiring nearly 30 minutes for its complete performance, will be broadcast by the National String quartet over the NBC system at 6 o'clock Sunday night.

"The Silver King," a drama in five acts by Henry Arthur Jones and Henry Herman, will be presented by NBC system stations at 7 o'clock Sunday night.

"Three Irish Pictures," by Ansell, will be introduced during the program of Slumber music to be heard over the NBC system at 10 o'clock Saturday night.

The string sextet will also play the overture to Thomas' "Raymond," Strauss' "Persian March" and a selection from Hoschna's "Three Twins."

SMITH MAKES BID FOR LOWDEN'S HELP

Drive for Votes in Middle West Will Be Made by Nominee

New York, Aug. 3—Confident of success in the south and west, Gov. Al Smith has decided to wage an intensive campaign in the middle west in the belief that if he can carry a few farm states he can clinch the presidential election.

The governor's first move to win the support of Republican farmers in the corn belt resulted in an announcement by George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., regarded as the spokesman for a million middle west farmers, that he would support the Democratic ticket. The next step to be taken by Smith is an effort to capture the farm vote will be the formation of a special committee which will have complete charge of the campaign in the agricultural centers. This committee is expected to be headed by Bernard M. Baruch and probably will have is headquarters in Chicago.

The drive for the farm votes will be concentrated in Illinois, Missouri and Wisconsin, according to close advisers of Governor Smith. There is a possibility that a farm-to-farm canvass may be made in these three states by the special farm relief committee in the hope of obtaining sufficient farm votes to swing the states into the Democratic column.

Bids For Lowden Support

In addition, Smith has made a frank bid for the support of Frank O. Lowden, former Republican governor of Illinois and a militant leader in the fight for farm relief. The governor announced that in the event of his election he would seek the help of such Republicans as Lowden in drafting a concrete plan for farm relief for submission to congress at its opening session.

Confidants of Governor Smith today pointed to the fact that Lowden withdrew his name as a presidential candidate at the Republican convention in Kansas City because his party failed to incorporate in its platform his idea of farm relief, and that he has never congratulated Herbert Hoover on his nomination. Smith is said to have been told, however, that he cannot expect any announcement from Lowden until after the Democratic notification ceremony at Albany on Aug. 22. In his acceptance speech, Governor Smith plans to deal extensively with farm relief.

Governor Smith is said to feel that if he can win Lowden's support it will mean success for the Democratic ticket in Illinois. Lowden is spending the summer at the Thousand Islands, and it is understood that two of Smith's advisers are planning to pay him a friendly call in the near future.

REBECCA CIRCLE HOLDS MEET AT GREEN CAMP

Green Camp, Aug. 3—The Rebecca Friendship circle held its July meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Clyde Temple southwest of town. At the noon hour a cafeteria dinner was served. The business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Mable Bricker. The afternoon was spent sewing.

The August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Emma Long, at Centerville.

COMPETITIVE WAGE SCALE IS OFFERED

Little Hope of Operator-Miner Agreement Seen After Conference

Columbus, Aug. 3—"Our offer of a competitive wage scale to the union miners of Ohio at the conference here yesterday, is the only way that Ohio coal mines can operate with union labor, and was the fairest proposal yet made to miners, in my belief," William Haskins, Coshocton operator, declared today as he prepared to leave for Coshocton, firm in the belief that Ohio mines will continue to operate non-union until such a time as the union miners see fit to agree to the competitive scale.

Lee Hall, president of the Ohio miners' union, said this morning that it was impossible to agree to such a scale and that nothing but the 1917 agreement, if even for only a short period, would be acceptable. Hall also said that the executive board of the miners might issue a statement later in the day.

The proposition suggested by Haskins was as follows:

"Operators will be glad to contract for union labor in Ohio mines, if they will recognize the economic factors involved and agree on a wage scale approximating that which is paid in non-union mines of Ohio. To complete this scale, it is suggested that a committee of three miners, three operators and the governor of Ohio, or whoever he may appoint, be named who shall have the authority to correct the scale by increasing or decreasing wages as they are increased or decreased by competitors in other coal districts of Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky."

This was the proposal the miners refused to consider, it was said.

Haskins and other operators present at the conference said that their proposals were for their own holdings and did not represent the Ohio Coal Operators or Central Ohio Operators associations. The meeting broke up when it was seen nothing could be accomplished.

Personal Sketches Provide Information for Voters Regarding Contestants in Marion County Primary

Editor's Note: Candidates entered for the Marion County primary have filled out questionnaires sent to them by The Star and the information obtained will appear in a series of brief summaries published prior to the primary day, Aug. 14.

Mike Rider, 50, resident of Prospect township, is a Democratic candidate for the nomination for sheriff. He was born in Prospect township and has always lived in Marion county. Never held elective public office. Served as a member of the city police force here in 1902 and 1903. Present occupation is farming. Says that his policy, if elected, will be a "square deal for everybody."

Edward F. Lauer, Democratic candidate for the nomination for county treasurer, lives in Prospect, is married and has two sons. Says that if elected his policy in office will be "efficiency and economy." Has been a hardware merchant the last eight years, engaged in farming five years, and served under civil service in the U. S. postal department four years. Served five years as councilman in Prospect and one year as mayor. Was born in Prospect township in 1887 and has always lived in Marion county.

* * *

Everett Grigsby, candidate for the Republican nomination for clerk of courts, lives in Waldo township, his address being Waldo, R. F. D. No. 1. Occupation is farmer and foundryman. Is 29 years old and unmarried. Born in Prospect township, Feb. 20, 1899 and has always lived in Marion county. Was clerk of Waldo township four years, treasurer of the Waldo centralized schools four years, and served as census enumerator in Waldo village and township in 1920. Member of the Republican county central committee six years and of the Republican county executive committee two years. Says his policy, if elected, will be: "Courtesy, honesty and efficiency in discharge of duties."

* * *

O. C. McCurdy, 46, is a Republican candidate for the nomination for county commissioner, short term. Address is Marion, R. F. D. No. 8. Is married and has two daughters and one son. Never sought public office before. Present occupation is farming. Was formerly ranked as the largest shipper of horses in central Ohio. Born in Ashley, Delaware county, in 1882, and has lived in Marion county 40 years. Says: "If nominated and elected will serve to the best of my ability."

Assert Hoover, If Elected, Might Appoint Mellon For His Third Successive Term

Plans Would Send Mills to Great Britain as Ambassador, Make Donovan Attorney General and Klein Secretary of Commerce

Washington, Aug. 3—In the event of the election of Herbert Hoover it was believed in political circles here today that Secretary Mellon might be appointed for his third successive term as head of the treasury department.

Observers, however, said that it would be surprising if Mellon remained in the cabinet throughout the administration, but that he would resign within a comparatively short time. Mellon during his eight years as secretary of the treasury has completed all of the principal reconstruction projects.

The foreign debts, excepting that of Russia, have been funded and there is no further action to be taken in that connection by the treasury except collectio. Arrangements have been completed for the retirement of the public debt, tax legislation has been transformed from emergency to permanent, peacetime basis, the war finance corporation virtually has been liquidated, the farm loan system remodeled, and other details of post-war financing cleared away.

Mills Under Consideration

Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills is said to be under consideration for ambassador to Great Britain. Hoover desired to place both Mills and Col. William J. Donovan, assistant to the attorney general, in cabinet jobs, but both are from New York and it is not customary to name two cabinet officers from a single state.

Mills is regarded as having adequate qualifications for the important diplomatic post, being wealthy and having a wide knowledge of international affairs.

Donovan would be Hoover's selection for attorney general, it was reported, while Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, was mentioned as a possibility for secretary of state. Friends of Hoover thought Dr. Julius Klein, director of foreign and domestic commerce, might be named secretary of commerce.

Both Mills and Donovan came out for Hoover early in his campaign for the nomination. Mills has a strong hold on Republican affairs in New York.

Donovan had a distinguished war record and was decorated with the congressional medal of honor, the French Legion of Honor and an Italian decoration as the result of extraordinary heroism during the final phase of the Meuse Argonne offensive. Donovan was assistant chief of staff of the 27th division, New York National guard, and commanding officer of the 165th infantry, the Id "Fighting 69th." During the war days he was "Wild Bill" Donovan.

August Finds Southward Trek of Birds Starting; Steal Away Quiet Unheralded

BY PROF. ALLEN C. CONGER
(Department of Zoology, Ohio Wesleyan University)

It would seem that the hot sun of dry August days here in Ohio might deter even the most eager of travellers from setting out on a journey to tropical regions, but the observant bird student soon notes that the southward trek has really begun before the end of this month. Long before unfavorable conditions should force birds to seek more congenial regions, the bird population shifts to the south. Here in the north, foods of all kinds is abundant at this season. Insect life is at flood tide and weed seeds and grain are everywhere available.

Nevertheless, in this land of plenty, the same irresistible wanderlust develops and one by one we must check off many of our feathered friends as they leave us for awhile. In the spring, most of them came with a burst of song and in gay wedding garb; now they steal away quite unheralded and in somber travelling dress.

Already the swallows show signs of unrest and at evening they perch in long lines on the telephone wires along our highways. By the month-end most of the graceful barn swallows will have gone from the northern half of the state. The strikingly bicolored tree swallows have come down from more northern summer homes to tarry with their Ohio cousins for a few weeks and then all of them will bid us adieu. The little demure rough-wing swallows which nested in the stone abutments of our bridges will leave our quiet streams before September first.

It is to be noted that the swallows are insect-eaters and feed on the wing. Another group of insect-eating birds is now also enroute to the south, for out of the forests of the North have begun to come the Warbler hosts. The bird student who found the Warblers confusing in the spring time, when in bright plumage and in song, may well despair of identifying some of these fall migrants, for now adults in dull plumage and immature birds add to the difficulties of study.

During August we welcome the advance guard of many species. The gay magnolia is here again. The bay-breasted, in disguise at this season, appears in flocks with the black-polls. The two are close relatives and betray their kinship by striking similarities in fall dress. The rare Connecticut and mourning warblers, both in paler plumage may stop with us for a few weeks. The wilson, with its jet black cap, and the Canada, both of them with bright yellow beneath, are two cousins who pay us a call. Some of these will tarry but a few weeks, leaving before mid-September. Other species will perhaps stay until October first, for fall migration dates are not so definitely fixed as are the spring arrival dates we gave some months ago.

Down the river, where the shrunken stream now flows between thickets of water willow, we must say farewells to the yellow warbler, for quite all of them will be gone by the month-end. Nor must we forget the Chat, which has mocked us and whistled to us from the thickets along neglected fencerows. Unlike the other warblers in size and actions, he carries his individuality clear into migration and books his passage via Mexico rather than by the over-water route across the Caribbean, which most warblers seem to prefer.

Thousands of miles of land and water stretch before these feathered wayfarers. To the enemies which kill with tooth and claw must be added the hazard of wind and weather. As they face these many perils, may we not wish these weak, frail warblers a bon voyage?

THREE CHILDREN HURT

Urbana, Aug. 3—When an automobile overturned near North Lewisburg three children were hurt, two of whom are in the hospital today. They were Dorothy Hudson, 14, and Paul Harmon, 6. The other child, Georgia Harmon, 7, was taken home. Four others in the car suffered only from shock.

GETS POMERENE SUPPORT

MOUSER ANNOUNCES PROHIBITION STAND

Failed To Receive W. C. T. U. Questionnaire, Candidate for Congress States

Grant E. Mouser, Jr., Marion candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, is one of several candidates for state and district offices who announce that they failed to receive copies of the "wet and dry" questionnaire sent out by the Ohio W. C. T. U.

Mouser stated today that yesterday he sent a telegram to the state W. C. T. U. secretary apprising her of his views on the prohibition question. In the telegram he said that he is not in favor of modifying or changing the Eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act and is also opposed to giving the states authority to handle prohibition as they see fit.

This is practically the same statement of principles upon which other candidates were given the state W. C. T. U. stamp of approval. In the W. C. T. U. "white list," announced several day ago, the four other candidates for congress in the Eighth Ohio district were listed as having sent satisfactory answers to the questionnaire. Mouser was not included, the report stating that he had not sent an answer.

Among other candidates who say they did not receive the questionnaires are Graham P. Hunt, Cincinnati, Democratic candidate for the nomination for United States senator, short term; J. H. Kauffman, Columbus, Democratic candidate for state auditor, and Kenneth L. Gordon, Columbus, Republican candidate for representative in the general assembly.

Mrs. Florence D. Richards, Toledo, state W. C. T. U. president, says that questionnaires were mailed to all state and district candidates.

"Our only purpose," she said, "was to determine whether the candidates were 'wet or dry.'"

REPORT TWO CASES OF TYPHOID IN COUNTY

Another case of typhoid fever has developed in Marion county, according to a report received today at the office of Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner. The latest to contract the disease is John Eichorn, 41, of Pleasant township.

Two cases of typhoid fever are now on record in the county. Clarence Williams, 13, of LaRue, is reported to be recovering from an attack.

August Sale Home Outfits

FOR FALL BRIDES and those about to go into housekeeping, no greater opportunity was ever offered to buy complete home furnishings at an amazingly low price! With this beautiful Home Outfit, you have little else to buy. Remember, this is our August Sale price

Another Sensation Whole House Full of Furniture for

...TERMS ARRANGED...

A Blue Ribbon Outfit—an outfit that we took months to arrange. Housewives selected this outfit. We asked several women what their choice in the way of furnishings for a complete 4-room outfit would be. They suggested the kind of furniture we have included in this outfit; first, because of its beauty and practicability and second, because of its economy. When each suite and odd piece was carefully chosen, we placed a price on the complete ensemble of only $395, to make this a wonderful August Sale feature. We want you to come in tomorrow and see it. Tell your newly-married friends about it. It is undoubtedly the GREATEST VALUE EVER SEEN IN THIS CITY!

ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. Delilah Dutton Named President of Society

Agosta, Aug. 3—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Agosta M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. Earl Withrow for an all day meeting Wednesday. A cafeteria dinner was served at the noon hour. The business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs Delilah Dutton.

Officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Delilah Dutton, president; Mrs. Doris Kale, vice president; Mrs. Mary Schaber, secretary and Mrs. Clara Imbody, treasurer.

The society will hold an ice cream social on the church lawn August 8. Mrs. Herman Postle was enrolled as a new member.

The next meeting will be held in the church basement the first Wednesday in September.

It generally pays someone to destroy beauty, and it costs something to replace it.—G. M. Trevelyan.

THREE OPERATIONS

Surgical Cases Listed in Report from City Hospital

One minor and two abdominal operations were performed this morning at City hospital. Mrs. L. E. Kimberling, of near Green Camp, and John Peirs, 238 Forest st, Bridgewater, Mass., were the patients for major operations. T. J. Brown, 463 Smith st., underwent a minor operation.

Mrs. Kimberling was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon in the C. E. Curtis & Co. invalid car.

Mrs. Ira Oswald, of three miles west of Norton, was removed from City hospital to the home of her sister, Mrs. N. H. Miller, 206 Leader st., yesterday afternoon in the M. H. Gunder invalid coach.

TELL HOW THEY PUT BLAZING PLANE DOWN

Quartet of Aviators on Rough Sea for 12 Hours Before Rescue

CRAFT OUT 700 MILES

Failure Marks Second Unsuccessful Attempt of Courtney To Span Ocean

New York, Aug. 3—Thankful to have escaped the fate of others who unsuccessfully attempted to span the Atlantic Capt. Courtney and his companions were aboard the transport liner Minnewaska enroute for this port today after having been spectacularly rescued from mid-ocean where they had landed in a blazing plane.

The Minnewaska will reach here Monday morning. Radio reports from the liner indicated that Courtney, E. H. Hoamer, Montreal banker and backer of the flight, E. W. Gilmour, radio operator, and Fred Pierce, mechanic, all were in good condition despite their harrowing experience.

The men were picked up at a point about 1,600 miles due east of New York and a little more than 700 miles west of their starting point, Horta, Azores.

The fliers were in the air about 14 hours when their plane caught fire Realizing that nothing could be done in the air, Courtney headed his blazing plane downward towards the sea. He succeeded in landing on the rough sea without serious mishap, radio advices indicated.

The four men aboard the plane succeeded in putting the blaze out after landing on the ocean. Then came terrible hours of waiting with their plane bobbing up and down with each wave.

Meanwhile, Gilmour sent out S. O. S. messages which were picked up by the S. S. Cedric and relayed to other ships. Five ocean liners rushed to the scene.

At 5 p. m. (eastern standard time) the first of the rescue ships, the Minnewaska, succeeded in picking up the marooned men. They had been adrift in mid-ocean for almost 12 hours.

This was Coutney's second unsuccessful attempt to span the Atlantic in a Dornier-Napier seaplane. His latest attempt started at 4:55 o'clock (Horta time) Wednesday afternoon. Last year he was forced to give up his attempts after many unsuccessful starts which got him no further than Valencia, Spain.

WOULD STOP TRAINS

Gasoline Coaches Unprofitable, Railroad Tells Commission

Columbus, Aug. 3—After conducting a public hearing here today, the state utilities commission took under advisement the application of officials of the Big Four railroad for permission to discontinue operating two gasoline trains, known as Nos. 201 and 204, between Delaware and Springfield.

The railroad claimed these two trains have been operated at a financial loss.

Residents of London, Marysville, Mechanicsburg, Ostrander and other points attended the hearing and protested against the railroad's application. A number of these protestants urged that the railroad supplant its present rolling stock in these two trains with new motor cars which, it was thought, would permit the railroad to operate the trains without a loss, if not at a financial profit.

GIVEN SURPRISE

Prospect Couple Observes Silver Wedding Anniversary

Prospect, Aug. 3—Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Wottring were delightfully surprised Wednesday night at their home, South Main st., by the Embroidery club and their husbands, the occasion being the celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Several beautiful gifts of silver were received by Dr. and Mrs. Wottring. A picnic supper was served on the lawn, and a social time enjoyed.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hazen, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Herr, Mr. and Mrs. Watt Kyle, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Curtiss, Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Finefrock, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Finefrock, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sechrist, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wolfinger, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Beavers, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Hall, Mrs. Cora Roberts, Mr. John Reeder, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sauers, of Marion.

CLASS MEETS

Clifford Smith in Charge of Y. C. W. Class Session

Green Camp, Aug. 3—The Y. C. W. class of the Reformed church, west of the village, held its meeting with Miss Rella Jacobs. She was assisted by Miss Margaret Loos, of Marion. The president, Clifford Smith, had charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Mable Bricker led the devotionals. Contest awards went to Miss Wilda Reichardt and Mrs. Bricker.

The class guests were Misses Gertrude and Mary Haberman and Mary Penry, of Marion; Helen Bricker, of Akron; Lee Harper, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Howard Gummel, of Cleveland; Misses Iva and Elma Zieg, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Haberman, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Knuchel and son, Dick.

It is probable that being in a rut is good for a great many people.

AQUATIC EXPERTS

Four girls, ranging in age from 12 to 18, rank among the most expert of the hundreds of swimmers seen in the water at Crystal lake this summer. Two of them live in Marion. They are the daughters of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. McMurray. Muriel, 12 years old, and Minerva, who is now nearing her sixteenth birthday. The other two are their cousins and guests from Hiram, O., Miss Katherine Craft, 16, and her sister Jane, 18.

These four, with Dr. "Jim" McMurray, are included among the swimmers at the park pool almost every day, either afternoon or evening.

The two girls from Hiram both started swimming in the Cuyahoga river rapids when they were about eight years old. The McMurray girls learned at about the same age in the waters of the lake here.

Spectators enjoy watching the aquatic feats of the four. All but Muriel are accomplished divers. Muriel, who has never tried a dive, has to hold her nose before she jumps. She does "straight swimming," however, like a veteran.

Minerva, the tallest of the four, goes with a long, distance-consuming stroke. Her surface dives are remarkably graceful and show expert judgment of distance.

Wednesday afternoon of this week provided a typical example of the girls' swimming program. There was diving from the highest board at the lake. Then they threw stones into the water and went down after them. Invariably Minerva and Jane came up with the stones. Jane dives to an unusual depth and with marvelous rapidity.

Piling heavy rocks on their stomachs, the girls all swam out to the line Wednesday afternoon, Muriel leading in the race, which was decidedly close.

Jim "Jim" must not be left out in referring to swimming achievements, for he is one of the few persons in the city who can float for 30 minutes or more practically without moving a muscle. It might be said that he can almost sleep on the water with as much ease as though he were in bed.

Although their swimming next week will not be in such smooth and tranquil water, the girls will have just as much sport, for the Misses McMurray are going to be the guests of their cousins and swim in Cuyahoga river.

NOT ON PROGRAM

A YOUNG Marion woman, a school teacher, told this one on herself. Something was said to remind her of the once tragic incident and so she began her tale "one time" not giving one any inkling as to exactly when the incident she was about to relate had occurred.

The scene was a large city theater—one of those very particular kind—with a sign out front announcing that babes in arms were not regarded of an age suitable for theater attendance.

The characters were the school teacher and her companion, who had stopped in the show after a shopping tour. The companion, seating herself, handed her packages to the school teacher to hold. The latter clutched them and was surprised—even more surprised than the other thousands of occupants of the auditorium when the contents of one of the larger packages emitted a loud "Ma! Ma!" before the organ began to play.

When the laughter had subsided and the young Marion school teacher regained her dignity—her companion explained the cause of embarrassment.

She had purchased a "ma-ma" doll to take home to a niece.

GOING DOWN

THE slump in Marion county's personal tax duplicate this year, believed to approximate a million and a half dollars, appears to bear out predictions made when the Smith one per cent tax law became effective, about five years ago. The Smith law is actually non-existent at this time, and has been for a number of years, as the result of numerous amendments.

The intent of the law, passed through the efforts of a Marion county legislator, was to limit the tax levy eventually to one per cent. On this prospect, personal tax valuations increased tremendously. Then when citizens began to realize that the one per cent limitation was only a dream never to be fulfilled, they began to hedge on their tax returns.

The personal tax problem may become serious, local officials and others throughout the state believe. Something must be done, it is asserted, to induce people to be more generous in their returns. Just how this can be accomplished is something yet to be determined. Some time ago Marion county officials and those of other counties held conferences with state authorities for the purpose of discussing the situation.

The general opinion seems to be that assurance of a low rate is the only way citizens can be induced to place their money and other belongings on the tax duplicate at something like actual value.

AMERICAN DECATHLON ENTRY HOLDS SECOND

Flying Finn Beaten in 5,000-Metre Run by Willie Ritola

REFUSES TO RUN TIE

U. S. Regatta Teams Split Even in Second Day Events

Olympic Stadium, Amsterdam, Aug. 3—Ray Barbuti, Syracuse university's colored athlete brought the American stock down in front in a running event of the Olympic games by winning the 400-metre final heat today.

Barbuti's clinking race was timed in 47 4-5 seconds, just a fifth of a second above the Olympic record, made by Eric Liddell, Great Britain, at the last games. The Syracuse entry beat a stellar field of six starters the other American, Herman Phillips, Illinois A. C., finishing sixth.

Bell, Canada, was second; Buchner, Germany, was third; Rinkel, Great Britain, was fourth; and Stors, Germany, fifth.

Takes Slight Loss

The American point total suffered a slight loss when Jackson Scholz declined to run off his tie with Helmut Kornig, the German, for third place in the 200-meter dash. The action automatically conceded the place to Kornig. Following the suggestion of a run off, Scholz explained that, thinking he was faced with competition in these games, he had broken training and "couldn't be able to do himself justice." However, the American camp was inclined to believe that Scholz felt Kornig had beaten him in the finals and didn't think the German should be given a race again for something he already was entitled.

Following the broad jump, 100-metre run and shot put of the decathlon, James Stewart of the Los Angeles A. C. was in third place with a point score of 7384.05.

Jansson of Finland led the decathlon contenders with a score of 7508.30, and Lindman of Sweden was second. Other Americans were not placed among the leaders.

Wilson of South Africa, who was leading at the start, disappeared from among the leaders after the shot put.

American Ends Fourth

Willie Ritola, the Finn who learned his running in America, obtained satisfaction in full for past indignities at the hands or feet of his great countryman, Paavo Nurmi, by beating the famous flying Finn in the final of the 5,000-metre run. Ritola's victory reversed the order of the finish in the 10,000-metre event on Sunday last. Edwin Wide, the noted Swede, was third today and Leo Lermond, Boston, running well up to expectations, was fourth.

The second day of the Olympic rowing regatta opened auspiciously for the United States when the American double scullers, Charles McIlvane and Paul Costello scored an easily four-length victory over the Swiss pair.

The Penn A. C. pair rowed perfectly together, covering the 2,000 meter course in seven minutes 46 4-5 seconds, and the issue was never in doubt.

In the next event, however, the pair-oared shell with coxswain, the American team consisting of August S. Goetz, Joseph Dougherty and 14-year-old Tom Mack, at the helm, went down to defeat before the Italian trio.

INDICTMENTS CLIMAX BATTLE AT CHICAGO

Morris Eller and Son Named by Special Grand Jury

Chicago, Aug. 3—A sensational climax to Chicago's fight against election terrorism and alleged crooked elections was written today with the indictment of Morris Eller, city collector and a powerful figure in politics, and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller.

Father and son were named in indictments charging "general conspiracy," returned by a special election crime and fraud grand jury.

The senior Eller, by his own admission to the grand jury, is the political boss of the "bloody twentieth" ward," where alleged frauds and violence for years were climaxed last primary day, April 10, when Octavius R. Granady, colored opponent of Morris Eller for Republican ward committeeman, was shot to death by gangsters.

fuel were needed. If not, they said they intended flying direct to the Bermudas.

Weather conditions for the flight were ideal. Kubala, acting as navigator, sat next to Idzikowski in one of the two open cockpits. The plane is not cabin-enclosed.

Before starting Kubala expressed confidence that he and his companion would land in New York in 40 hours as they expected a northeasterly wind behind them most of the way. For provisions, the fliers carried a dozen chicken sandwiches, two thermos bottles of coffee and six bottles of champagne. They said they expected to consume the champagne enroute "so as not to violate the United States prohibition law."

Fliers Experienced

The "Marzalek Pilsudski" is an Amlot metal biplane powered by a 650-horse-power Lorraine Dietrich motor. Its wingspread is 65 feet and cruising speed about 100 miles an hour.

Both aviators have had long experience. During the early part of the war they fought on opposite sides, Idzikowski fighting in the Russian armies and Kubnal on the side of Austria. Both learned flying during the war and joined the Polish air force when Poland became an independent country.

The plane is not equipped with radio appartus and therefore will not be heard from directly on its flight. Radio equipment was dispensed with because of the heavy fuel load being carried.

HEAT KILLS FOUR

Two Die from Heat Prostration At Cleveland

Cleveland, Aug. 3—Four persons are dead here today, victims of the heat wave that has gripped this section during the last 24 hours.

The dead are: Robert McGee, 45, and John Fisher, 56, who died of heat prostration; Joseph Kotlan, 45, who fainted while painting a house and was killed in the subsequent fall; and Charles Nagy, 19, who was drowned in Lake Erie while seeking relief from the heat.

Azara Safely Anchored in Port of Santander

Santander, Spain, Aug. 3—The American yacht Azara, for which a wide search had been made when it failed to appear off the Spanish coast several days after the other yachts in the race for the Spanish King's Cup had arrived here, was safely anchored in this port today.

The yacht was located by a government gunboat beside some distance from the coast. It was proceeding slowly, having been becalmed for several days.

APPEAL TO REASON IN HOOVER DRIVE

Trip into Woods Last Effort To Win on "Personality" Issue

Stanford University, Cal., Aug. 3—Herbert Hoover today served notice on his personal "board of strategy" that his campaign in the future will be conducted along the line of an "appeal to reason," rather than to "appeal to the emotions" of America's twenty million voters.

Hoover will leave to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic rival, all spectacular campaign moves and conduct his own campaign on a business basis. His trip to the north woods was Hoover's last effort to win the election on a "personality" issue.

The Republican nominee made this plain to his personal advisers, most of whom have known him since his school days. The candidate indicated he had had a taste of the "personality" campaign on his five-day vacation trip and that he disapproved of it. Time and again on his tour of northern California and southern Oregon, Hoover made unexpected detours to avoid crowds.

On this trip north, Hoover apparently tried to adapt himself to the "ballyhoo" type of campaign. He posed liberally for the photographers and moved freely with the newspapermen in his entourage. He didn't like it and whenever he got an opportunity, he slipped away by himself to fish in seclusion. His fishing excursions incidentally were spent wandering through forests and pacing woodland trails, with the angling a side issue rather than the principal attraction.

His personal board of advisers arranged the trip. They had protentious plans to entertain him in various cities. Hoover vetoed them all. He frequently changed even the plans he allowed them to make for the trip. In the end, he reverted to "Hooverism." He played himself a man, aloof from others but warm to his friends and a hater of all that is artificial. He will not again attempt to step out of character.

Back to Capital

His present plans will take him back to Washington after his farm speech about Aug. 21 in West Branch, Iowa, his birthplace. After that, he will make a few excursions from Washington to make "key speeches," but these will be limited to a dozen. One will be in Boston, another in New York, a third in Chicago and a fourth probably in Detroit. The rest of the time, he will remain in Washington.

Hoover meanwhile reclined to comment on the action of George N. Peek, the Moline, Ill., farm leader, in endorsing Governor Smith. Hoover's advisers declared Peek's action was forecast when the Illinoisan endorsed the Democratic farm relief plank while attacking the Republican platform.

NO MORE ZOO CAGES FOR POOR ANIMALS

Those That Suffer Under Captivity Cited by Manager of Society

San Francisco, Aug. 3—The caging of animals that do not flourish under captivity is taboo in the best zoological circles.

This statement was made by Dr. W. P. Blair, manager of the New York Zoological Society, better known as the Bronx Zoo, who came to San Francisco to attend the eighth annual convention of the National Conference on State Parks.

The gorilla was cited by Dr. Blair as a typical animal that can not thrive in captivity.

"Our society has taken a decided stand against the further capture of animals for the Bronx Zoo where cruelty is necessary for the capture and where captivity imposes a hardship on them," Dr. Blair said.

"For instance, it is impossible to capture a full grown gorilla. It would require a regiment to do it. So if we want to place a gorilla in our Zoo we have to capture a baby ape. In order to do this it is necessary to slay both the mother and the father of the animal.

"The highest type of family devotion is to be found among the gorillas, and the mother and father and others in a troop will put up a terrific battle before they let one of their little ones be taken.

CITIES FILE BRIEF IN GAS RATE CASE

Want Valuation on Company's Property Placed at 26 Million

Vic Donahey, on behalf of all municipalities and unincorporated villages which had not filed specific complaints, submitted a general complaint protesting against the proposed new rates.

Public Hearing in 1925

As a result, the commission issued an order suspending the effectiveness of the proposed rates for a period of 120 days from the date of their filing. At the conclusion of the 120-day period, the company decided to collect the boosted rates, under bond, pending final disposition of the case by the commission. Under a surety bond filed with the commission, it was stated, the company has collected several hundreds of thousands of dollars. In the event that the commission determines upon rates other than those proposed by the company, the commission is expected to order the company to refund to its customers, from the collections made under this bond, the difference between the company's proposed rates and those to be fixed by the commission.

The commission instituted public hearings in this case in 1925. These hearings were held from time to time until April 27, last, when counsel for the protesting communities completed submission of their testimony. The company finished submission of its testimony at a public hearing held on December 17, last year.

Protest Against Proposal

Counsel for the protesting communities, in the brief filed today, argued vigorously against the proposal of counsel for the company that the commission disregard its practice of announcing a tentative valuation before determining a final valuation. Attorneys for the Logan Gas Co. desired the commission to speed up disposition of the case by announcing its rate schedule when it decides upon a valuation of the company's properties.

Pointing out that such procedure would prevent either side from protesting against the valuation fixed by the commission, counsel for the protesting communities contended the law gives either side the right to file a motion for a rehearing and introduce evidence in support of its protest.

"To deprive either party of this right would be contrary to the statute and if the company's theory would be accepted—that the commission fix rates at the same time it fixes a valuation—the commission would be fixing rates upon a false premise in that it would be depriving parties of their statutory rights in changing that valuation by introducing new and additional evidence in support of its protest, as provided by law," counsel for the protesting communities argued.

Urge Material Reductions

Citing recent decisions of the Ohio supreme court upholding the action of the state utilities commission in rejecting specific sums listed as "going concern" values submitted by Ohio utilities in valuation of their properties for rate-making purposes, counsel for the protesting communities urged the commission to disregard all of the $2,259,816 "going concern" item contained in the Logan Gas Company's valuation. It was contended that sufficient allowance for going concern value had been made by the company in various other items embodied in its inventory.

Urging material reductions, the attorneys for the protestants took exception to numbers items in the company's inventory, including values of leaseholds, overheads, depreciation of physical property and depreciation of certain overheads. The items involve several millions of dollars, it was stated.

Declaring that "the entire structure of the Logan Gas Company's case pertaining to its physical property either rises or falls upon the testimony of E. G. Hill, New York rate expert, representing Ford, Bacon & Davis, retained for the protesting communities claimed that the appraisal made by Hill of the company's properties was inadequate, and charged that "Hill has been a gas company man during all of his professional experience." Grim Relics of Sacrifices Are Found in Ancient Tomb

London—Grim relics of the human sacrifices made at the funeral of the all powerful King of Ur, who ruled the ancient Mesopotamian Kingdom of Chaldea 5,000 years ago, have reached London.

The remains of 11 women of the harem, blazing with gold jewels, six soldiers and 42 male and female slaves, who were murdered in the dark underground tombs of this king so that they might serve their master in the next world, are included in this valuable collection, now on exhibition at the British Museum.

Considered the most important discoveries since the tomb of Tutankhamen was found in Egypt, these objects were dug up at Ur under the direction of the well-known archaeologist, Leonard Woolley.

Murdered People

When the tomb was opened it was found to be a charnel house of decayed bones. The murdered men and women lay as they had fallen against the walls and on the floors.

The skulls of the soldiers, crushed by the weight of the earth which had fallen on them, lay in copper helmets, turned bright green with age. The women of the harem were piled against the wall of the tomb chamber, their skeletons, still wearing ornaments of beaten gold; beside them their make-up boxes in the form of little gold cockle-shells and full of a hard green substance which 5,000 years ago had been face paint.

Thin bands of beaten gold, which the women twined in their hair, were visible around the skulls.

The most interesting object in the exhibition at the British Museum is the headdress of the mysterious Queen Shub-Ad. This queen's body is believed to have been placed in the tomb at a late date in order that she might lie near her husband.

Her skull being crushed, it was impossible to reconstruct her features, but the most perfect women's skull in the tomb was taken and modelled after the face of the dead women. On this the headdress has been arranged.

Fifty-nine Bodies

It is formed of coils of gold ribbon. Across the forehead is a band of lapis lazuli beads, from which hang heavy rings of bright gold. Higher up the headdress takes the form of two floral wreaths, one of the mulberry leaves, the other of willow or beech leaves, everyone beautifully formed of gold.

The final touch is a great gold comb which towers above the wreaths. It is like a seven-fingered hand, and from the fingers fall seven delicate golden flowers which swayed and tinkled together when she moved her head.

Exactly how the fifty-nine men and women were murdered is a mystery, but from appearances it is believed they were all marshalled into the dim underground chamber and then, at a signal, slaughtered where they stood.

Polar Flights Worthless is German Scientist's View

Berlin, Aug. 3—"Polar flights like the ones undertaken by Amundsen with the "Norge" and by Nobile with the "Italia" are entirely worthless from a meteorological point of view. They yield no scientific results whatever and are not comparable to the brilliant achievements of Fritjof Nansen who drifted about in polar ice for years.

While the world was anxiously watching the dramatic story of Nobile's rescue from almost certain death in the lonely, icebound deserts of the polar region, this opinion was expressed with great frankness by Professor Dr. H. von Ficker, director of the Meteorgilcal Institute of Prussia in an article of the Deutsche Allegmeine Zeitung.

Foolish To Talk

"I wish people would cease exploiting their aeronautic expeditions to the North Pole by hinting to the results possibly obtained therein for meteorological science. As things are at present airships and fliers badly need meteorology but meteorology does not need them in the least.

"It is just as foolish to talk about shooting a rocket into the air for the sake of meteorological observations. Meteorological science does not take a burning interest in such experiments because so far nobody has the slightest idea what the instruments should be like with which the rockets are to be shot.

"Valuable observations and positive scientific results for meteorology can only be obtained in extensive expeditions in polar regions as the one undertaken years ago by Fritjof Nansen with his "Fram." Results may also be obtained if airships should succeed in establishing a permanent observation station near the pole, dropping men and material by means of parachutes. Or, if this is not possible, by landing a group of well-trained meteorologists near the Pole and fetching them after some months.

No Immediate Value

"We cannot see such possibilities in the nearest future, for the landing of airships in populated areas is hazardous enough, to say nothing of a landing in polar regions. And even if airship succeeded in establishing such meteorological outposts it would not be worth while risking human lives.

"What we need is a group of concrete meteorological observatories around the polar region, a new "Polar Year" as in 1882, in which numerous nations established such stations to register meteorological phenomena. It is only through such stations that meteorology could obtain satisfactory results of scientific importance, and not through insufficiently organized haphazard and risky flights over the Pole by airship and airplanes."

JURY TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF CLEVELANDER

Cleveland, Aug. 3—The Cuyahoga county grand jury will investigate the alleged fatal stabbing of Henry Gyurcsik, July 17, by his 30-year-old friend, [illegible]

Allensworth, Columbus rate expert, that the commission should not value these leaseholds in excess of $251,005.78. Allensworth was one of the appraisal engineers employed by the protestants and the state to make a valuation of the properties of the Logan Gas Co.

Makeup of Valuation

"The complainants have proved conclusively in the record(of this case) that the entire value of the (Logan Gas Company's) property used and useful in furnishing natural gas service to all of the 72 municipalities and unincorporated villages and communities to be $26,504,128.28," reads the brief submitted to the commission today.

This valuation is made up as follows:

"Valuation of physical property, including overheads, such as engineering, administrative and legal expenses, liability insurance, taxes, interest during construction, contingencies and [illegible] $24,245,312; rights of way to the company's pipelines, [illegible] value of gas lands and [illegible] $259,816.78; [illegible] $259,816.78; working [illegible]

FOUR INDICTED IN OBREGON'S MURDER

Warrants Issued for Three Others; Toral Is Questioned

Mexico City, Aug. 3—Jose De Leon Toral, Mother Superior Acevedo Concepcion De La Lata of Espinta Santo convent, Senora Maria Luisa Pena Altamira and Jorge Fernando Gallardo Paron, a cousin of Leon Toral, have been indicted in connection with the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon and it was announced today that the trials would start next week. Leon Toral is the self-confessed assassin. The others are accused of complicity.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of three others. They are:

Manuel Trejo Morales, who is accused of giving Leon Toral the pistol with which General Obregon was shot to death on July 17.

Carlos Castro Balda, who is alleged to have been a confederate of Morales in the planting of bombs in the chamber of deputies building last May.

Padre Jose Jiminez.

It is believed that Leon Toral's counsel will adopt a plea of insanity, a defense that has proved efficacious in so many murder trials in the United States.

Toral Is Questioned

Leon Toral's lawyer probably will ask for the appointment of a commission to examine the prisoner. He said that evidence would be introduced along two lines:

1—To prove that the prisoner is a religious fanatic;

2—To prove that there was a strain of insanity in his family.

Prosecuting Attorney Juan Correa Nieto said that Leon Toral, the Catholic nun and Gallardo Paron will be charged with murder when the trial opens.

The Mexican law prohibits the execution of women.

As Leon Toral has already confessed, it is expected that he will be found guilty and will face a firing squad unless his lawyer's insanity plea saves him.

The mother superior faces a 20-year term. The other two face 10-year sentences as accessories before the fact if found guilty.

Newspaper men were again allowed to question Leon Toral. When asked if he considered himself sane he pondered the question gravely for a few moments then replied:

"I believe so."

Society Revealed

The preliminary court inquiry has revealed the presence of a society with headquarters in Villa De Guadalupe, a suburb, which is alleged to have been formed for the purpose of assassinating men in power.

According to the prosecution this society was an outgrowth of the conflict between the Church and the state in Mexico. Its members were said to have plotted against the lives of high officials including President Calles.

Members of this secret order, it is claimed, were compelled to take an "oath of service" and were branded with the letters "I. H. S." which stand for "in hoc signo."

CAPTURE ONE BANDIT

Columbus, Aug. 3—When two bandits were forced to abandon their automobile after robbing a local gasoline station of $50, police arrested Francis Roll, 20, as one of the holdup men. Roll told police today he did not know the name of his companion, but that he held the gun while the other man scooped up the cash.

It would be funny to hear anyone tell a poet how to be "efficient."

DROPS 22 DEGREES

Fifteen-Minute Thunderstorm Causes Record Decrease

Wilmington, Aug. 3—What is believed to have been the greatest drop in temperature in a 15-minute period had been recorded here today following the thunder storm yesterday. The mercury stood at 92 degrees when the storm broke and in 15 minutes it was 22 degrees cooler, and cellars and streets were flooded from the minature cloud burst.

Blight damage to garden crops were reported after the heavy downpours.

GOV. SMITH OPPOSED TO SECTION OF BILL

Democratic Candidate Gives Views in McNary-Haugen Proposal

New York, Aug. 3—Gov. Al Smith made it plain today that he is absolutely opposed to the equalization fee as contained in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill but that he does approve the principle of controlling the sale of surplus farm commodities and assessing the cost on the units benefited.

When asked today if he had intended to imply in his latest public statement on farm relief that he favored the equalization fee, the governor replied:

"The Democratic party is committed to the basic principle of controlling the sale of agricultural surpluses, the cost to be borne by the group benefited. It is not committed to the plan of applying the principle which was contained in the McNary-Haugen bill. We have no present plan for carrying out the principle, but we promise to work out such a plan immediately after election."

CLEAVER SENTENCED TO 25 YEARS IN PEN

Also Ordered To Pay Fine of $10,000; Attorney Wins Delay

Chicago, Aug. 3 — Charles (Limpy) Cleaver, found guilty with his co-defendant Attorney Charles S. Wharton, on charges of participation in the Grand Trunk $133,000 Evergreen park mail robbery, today was sentenced by Federal Judge Wilkerson to 25 years imprisonment in Atlanta penitentiary and to pay a fine of $10,000.

Wharton was not sentenced. His attorney's won the delay when a motion for a new trial was granted and set for hearing Sept. 17. Motions for a new trial in Cleaver's behalf were refused.

CONTINUE FIGHT

Hickman Attorneys To Carry Battle To Supreme Court

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 3—All hope of gaining victory in the courts of California having vanished, attorneys for William Edward Hickman today launched preparations to carry to the United States supreme court their fight to save the slayer of Marion Parker from the noose.

On the heels of the California state supreme court's denial of a petition for a rehearing of Hickman's appeal came the announcement from Richard Chatillon, associate defense counsel here, that an appeal from the murder conviction would be taken to the supreme court at Washington.

Death of Pastor.

The community extends its sympathy to the family and the congregation of the Rev. Frank P. George, pastor of the Herman Street Community church, who was drowned Wednesday morning.

The drowning of the Rev. Mr. George has all the elements of a tragedy. Off for a few days' vacation from his work of ministering to the spiritual side of his flock. The capsizing of the boat of which he was one of the three occupants. Clinging to the boat through the darkness of night in the cold lake water. Hearing a party bent on their rescue coming toward them and passing on, unable to make those in the searching boat hear them. And, then just an hour before a tug does reach them to have the Marion pastor, utterly exhausted from his night's strain, slip unconscious into the water to his death, his fellow-pastors too exhausted to be able to aid him.

His rescue so near and yet too far away.

The failure to find the pastor's body adds more sorrow to the tragedy.

Opportunity.

It is estimated that 58,000,000 citizens will be eligible to vote in November. Of this number about forty per cent. will be women. Every qualified voter should go to the polls, but if this presidential election is anything like its predecessors, a little more than half the men and less than fifty per cent. of the women will vote. Perhaps the issues this year will serve as a stimulus, and the voting will be heavier.

The women have not taken advantage of their hard-won right of suffrage. The extravagant predictions and promises of suffragists have not been fulfilled. Timidity is one reason and lack of familiarity with politics another. Moreover, a great many men still cling to the ancient thought that woman's place is not at the polls, and the wives and daughters have not voted out of deference to his opinion.

Are the women expected to become voter-minded more quickly than the men, many of whom never will vote although the issues and nominees come near to them?

This year interest in the election is greater than ever before, it seems, and the issues are controversial there may be a political awakening of surprising proportions among both the men and the women. Particularly is this so among the women. The nominees for president are campaigning on issues which are pertinent to the women—more so than in any election since the women were enfranchised. Politics is the principal subject of conversation among both sexes.

Since the modern woman thinks about the same as the voter of the opposite sex, the women will not vote against the men in November, but if there should be a greater political awakening among the women than among the men the former may be the deciding factor in the Hoover-Smith election.

Just now it is of paramount importance that every one who is eligible register and vote at the August primary. Those who do not exercise this right of franchise are not keeping pace with the times and are not doing their part in trying to strengthen the hands of the duly elected officials.

Observing Holidays.

Labor in Marion plans this year to make Labor day one of celebration.

In the past few years holidays in Marion have been colorless days. No effort has been made to arrange observances. As a result Marion in general trekked out of the city to other cities and to resorts.

It would be especially pleasing to see some of Marion's civic and social organizations arrange holiday observances in the future. One is reminded that the Kiwanis club, of Sandusky, staged a Fourth of July celebration this year that drew thousands to the city on the bay.

The Star hopes Marion's labor organizations have a success of their observance of Labor day this year.

Ohio Nears 125th Birthday.

Before a great while has passed Ohio is to observe an important birthday anniversary. The occasion comes in October. It will be fittingly observed in Columbus, where a progress exposition will be presented.

This exposition will reveal the progress of the great commonwealth during the last 125 years. Those of us here in Ohio know it is inspiring, inspiring. But it can not be a success without the cooperation of every city, village, town and hamlet in the state.

The Ohio chamber of commerce is sponsoring the exposition. The dates are October 24 to November 3.

It Wouldn't Be Any Fun That Way.

Quadrennially the United States nominates men for president in June, notifies them in August, elects one of them in November, and inaugurates him on the fourth of the following March. This is a custom long followed and one which has become second nature to the rank and file.

Comes now Albert Shaw in the Review of Reviews with the assertion that six weeks is sufficiently long between presidential nominations and the election. But is it? Not everyone will agree with Mr. Shaw—and besides, any such scheme would take out of the presidential campaigns the sport which these events provide every four years for that great army of men and women—the electorate.

Says Mr. Shaw; "With no telegraph lines, no railroads, no automobiles, no highways, news was distributed slowly a century and a half ago. In many of our states we are sensible enough to nominate in the late summer and elect in the early autumn, setting our legislators to work the following January. Our national parties would do well to consider the question of holding their conventions about October first."

From the standpoint of money involved in conducting a drawn-out campaign, perhaps Mr. Shaw is correct in his diagnosis of the situation. From the viewpoint of the man in the street who gets a sensation every four years out of presidential campaigns, Mr. Shaw is all wrong. Concerning state officials and legislators there is no comparison in elections. Statistics in the offices of boards of elections disclose that the people do not get excited over these biennial elections like they do the quadrennial election of a president.

But Mr. Shaw makes a suggestion worthy of thorough consideration. The vital thing he has overlooked, it would seem to one not very well versed in the task of thinking up something better for conditions already properly functioning, is the terrible strain under which a presidential nominee labors from the moment he is nominated until he is officially inducted in the office of president.

Surrounded by detectives and newspapermen and photographers, watched and ogled at wherever he goes. Pestered by well-wishers and others. Shut off from any privacy whatever. Urged to be careful what he eats. Sent to bed early to conserve his strength. Dieted and diagnosed. Fretted about and fussed over. A presidential nominee has no more chance to be calm during a campaign such as now is in vogue than a goldfish has of hiding itself from the gaze of the curious in its glass bowl.

A shorter and snappier presidential campaign might take all the fun out of it for the man in the street, but it would beyond question result in lasting physical benefit for the men fortunate enough to have been selected to campaign for the White House.

Questioning Remus' Citizenship.

Officials of the bureau of immigration at Washington have questioned the citizenship of George Remus, one-time king of the bootleggers, and confessed slayer of his wife, but now permitted freedom of action and speech, thanks to a kindly decision which has found him sane today, despite his own assertion that he was out of his head when he shot Mrs. Remus to death.

In October a hearing will be held in Ohio, probably in Columbus or Cincinnati, when Remus will have to show cause why he should not be deported as an undesirable alien.

Remus stoutly maintains that his father, who brought him to America when he was a small boy, became a naturalized citizen of the country. Careful search among the records of the immigration department do not disclose the customary naturalization papers, however. And in that case—if these papers are not unearthed, if they actually ever did exist—then Remus is not a citizen of the country, albeit he has lived as such and voted as such and practiced in the courts of the land as such.

It is to be hoped, in the spirit of fair play which should motivate every one under such circumstances, that a most thorough search is made for the naturalization papers of George Remus' father. If they are found, or any record is found which discloses that Remus, senior, actually became a naturalized American, then the charge that Remus is an undesirable alien must be dropped instantly. But if it is proven that Remus is not a citizen of the United States, then he should be deported. Such action, naturally, would prove irksome to Remus, but it might result in lasting benefit among the gentry of foreign parentage who today are emulating Remus in the bootleg business.

Dinner Stories.

Mrs. Saymore—"I'm going to get a divorce. George is the meanest man on earth."

Her Mother—"Why, what's he been up to now?"

Mrs. Saymore—"He's been teaching the parrot to take his side in an argument."

Mrs. Hopkins—"I thought your sign read: 'Photographs While You Wait.'"

Photographer—"It does, madam, but as you'll have to wait four days, maybe you'd rather wait at home."

Vagrant Verse.

A BLURRED LANDSCAPE.

Now this must be the sweetest place
From here to heaven's end;
The field is white with flowering lace,
The birches leap and bend.

The hills, beneath the roving sun,
From green to purple pass,
And little, trifling breezes run
Their fingers through the grass.

So good it is, so gay it is,
So calm it is, and pure,
And one whose eyes may look on this
Must be the happier, sure,

But me—I see it flat and gray
And blurred with misery,
Because a lad a mile away
Has little need of me.

THE "CHASE" CONTINUES.

Treating for Crooked Legs.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

My mail is filled with letters written by anxious mothers. Today I shall answer one or two of the questions which are so frequently asked. I do this gladly because I can think of no joy equal to that of coaxing a smile to the face of a mother.

Mothers are the greatest and best of all God's creatures, I believe. I have always loved that old saying:

"God couldn't be everywhere, so He made Mothers."

Unfortunately, many a baby suffers from one defect or another. Then the mother is broken-hearted.

Some of these are due to the lack of proper nourishment. Some come from the absence of certain chemical elements essential to perfect development.

Others are caused by too rapid development, or they may result from bad habits. For instance, the child may be permitted to walk too soon. The tiny bones have not grown strong enough to carry the weight of the baby.

Bow-legs and knock-knees are two conditions about which I get many letters.

A perfectly healthy child is not likely to have anything but straight legs. But rickets is a disease which softens the bones and causes deformities. It is a condition much more common than is suspected. This disease and its evil effects will appear if the feeding is not properly conducted.

Dear mother, do not yield to every whim of your child. He must be taught to eat the right things. You are unkind to the little one if you give way to his appetite. He must have the things which will supply the growing elements. If given the wrong foods they destroy his appetite for the more essential and nourishing foods.

Bow-legs may result from using habitually too thick a diaper. If this is the practice after walking begins, the thighs are forced apart and gradually the legs become bowed and perhaps markedly deformed.

It is unwise to hasten the walking. Keep the child off its feet if there is a tendency to knock-knees or bow-legs. The use of massage and gentle pressure several times a day will help straighten the little legs. Almost always a slight deformity disappears as the child matures.

Of course if the defect is marked you should talk with your doctor. If he thinks it necessary, you will consult a specialist in these troubles.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

M. M. M. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is fourteen years old and five feet one inch tall?

2.—What can I do for enlarged pores?

3.—Will three prunes and plenty of green vegetables produce enough iron in the system each day?

4.—What do you advise for boils?

A.—For her age and height, she should weigh about 108 pounds.

2.—Apply hot and cold compresses to the face, alternately, for ten minutes night and morning. This is often effective.

3.—Yes.

4.—You should have a thorough physical examination to determine just what your trouble may be. Make sure that the bowels eliminate properly. For full particulars as to diet send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

J. F. P. Q.—What do you suggest for piles?

2.—What can be done for poor hearing?

A.—Be careful of the diet and keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—First of all determine what is the cause of the trouble—a catarrhal condition is often responsible. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

C. E. G. Q.—What kind of food should a patient afflicted with acid stomach eat?

A.—He should avoid too many sweet and acid foods and be sure to keep the intestinal tract clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Progress of Aviation.

New York university summer school is offering a course in aeronautics this year.

Balilla, an Italian submarine, has succeeded in submerging to a depth of 331 feet, claimed to be a world's record.

The demand for airplanes has become so great that practically all of the 100 flying machine factories in the United States are behind in their orders.

For next year the Royal Dutch Air Service company has contracted to make each month a flight from Amsterdam to Batavia, Java, a distance of 9,000 miles, and vice-versa.

To increase the number of trained air-pilots in Canada, the dominion government offers a cash bonus of $100 to aeroplane clubs for each certified pupil they turn out.

Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? there is more hope of a fool than him.—Proverbs 26:12.

Prayer—Enable us Lord, to walk humbly with Thee.

Editorial Comment.

AIRPORTS AND TRIBUTARY TERRITORY.

No other state is as nearly covered by air-mail routes as is Michigan, under a service inaugurated with elaborate ceremonies at Kalamazoo last week, in the presence of many representatives of aviation and the post-office department.

From Muskegon, well up its western coast, mail planes will fly south, with a stop at Grand Rapids. From Bay City, well up its eastern coast, planes will fly southwest, with stops at Lansing and other points. From Detroit planes will fly west with such stops as will serve the public now and in the future.

At Kalamazoo will be the clearing house of all three state lines for mail matter from the North that is to go on to the West or to the East and for mail matter from those directions with which the planes are to return to the North. Each stopping point, in turn, is a clearing house from which mail brought by planes may be distributed for some miles around by free rural delivery or other agencies and to which mail may be sent by the same agencies to be forwarded by plane.

The part of the state south of a line drawn from Muskegon to Bay City is thus fairly well served by airplane and that part is not only a large fraction of the entire state territory, but includes nearly eighty per cent. of the total population. That the upper terminus of the West Michigan line will progressively be changed to towns farther and still farther north than Muskegon and that of the East Michigan line to towns farther north than Bay City is probable. If the service is found to supply a real need and is profitable, the time when the entire lower peninsula will be covered in air service, leaving the upper peninsula to be covered by lines of different schedule, is seen in the near future.

The reasons why the first comprehensive state air service is established thus early are worth studying. One not to be minimized is found in enterprising contractors who, after some experience, believe it will be advantageous to themselves under the new reduced rates of air postage. The great reason, however, is the interest in aviation of some half dozen moderately sized towns and their alertness in acquiring and improving landing fields with proper equipment. That other moderate-sized cities have the same interest and are planning airports of their own is one condition making the early extension of the state service probable.

Without this public-spirited provision, not only these cities, but considerable areas about them, would be deprived of the benefits of swift transit for their postal matter through the air. If these cities, at no small sacrifice, considering their size and means, have felt it a duty to create these modern airport facilities, in justice not merely to themselves but to their surrounding tributary territory from which they draw much of their prosperity, little occasion exists to emphasize the duty of prosperous, growing St. Louis.

For a clearing house on a tremendously greater scale in air mail, air passenger service, air traffic of all kinds, St. Louis is the logical point, and the provision made, if adequate, must be proportionately costly. The benefits of such a clearing house will extend for hundreds of miles in every direction. Voters denying support for the greater airport that has become a necessity will fail in their duty to the people of their own city and also to great numbers of people in wide areas of that forty-ninth state whose welfare is so closely linked with St. Louis.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE GROWING AIRPLANE INDUSTRY.

There was probably considerable amazement in this country many years ago when the announcement was made that the number of bicycle manufactories had been exceeded by the number of automobile plants. And now comes Postmaster General New to declare, in an address at Washington, that "there is in the United States today a greater number of factories turning out airplanes than there is building automobiles.....The business of making and operating planes has now attained the proportions of a $100,000,000 business annually." Nevertheless, it will be difficult for any of us to believe that the number of airplanes will ever exceed the number of motorcars—unless all of us begin to sprout mechanical wings. — Philadelphia Record.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Monday.

This section of the country passed through the hottest day in seven years. Chicago reported a temperature of ninety-seven degrees at 4,200 feet above the street level. Many deaths from prostration were reported. The high mark in Marion was ninety-nine degrees.

Large crowds were attending the annual camp meeting of the Methodist congregations of the city at the fairground.

"Talking" pictures proved very popular and were a feature of the bill at the Grand Opera house.

Marion was defeated by Lima in a game there, the score being seven to one. Wilmot and Craig pitched for Marion and Pickett hurled for Lima.

Charles Hess resigned as president of the Deutscher Bund and Charles Kissler was elected to fill the vacancy. It was announced that the male chorus would go to Canton the following week to take part in a saengerfest.

City council adopted a resolution requesting the county auditor to advance $11,000 to pay current city bills.

Life and Analogy.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"A low electric current to make contact with a motor and the motor, if it has no defect, springs to life. Is it not possible that there exists around us a life ray that can be likened to the radio ray, waiting for some agency to manifest it or give it a chance to function, the body acting as receiver for the life ray as the radio receiver acts for the radio ray? If the organism is not too badly out of order the life ray can be induced to return after apparent death. This explains why people are brought back to life after they seem to be dead. Which leads to the conclusion that there is no life, or there is no death, but merely a transformation from one conscious existence to another. This theory is only for argument and to provoke thought.—Alfred L. Schneider, ex-radio operator, Chicago."

Very interesting thoughts it suggests, too. I shall not, however, undertake either to dispute or to enlarge upon your idea, but, without discussing its probable value, I think it useful to recall the fact as I recently did with regard to some extraordinary speculations relating to astronomy, that there exists in the human mind a strong tendency to confuse resemblance with identity. Apparent analogies abound all around us, assuming a thousand deceptive and misleading forms, and it is not saying too much to aver that famous "philosophical systems"—and sometimes, too, widely spread scientific hypotheses—have been based upon nothing more solid than the shifting sands of analogy.

"Reasoning by analogy" is one of the easiest forms of self-deception, as well as one of the most popular methods of propagating novel conceptions and of making "the worse appear the better reason." Quacks and theorizers of every variety depend upon analogical reasoning for their strongest effects, for it is the most readily grasped and easily understood of all the shapes that argument assumes. It is the right hand of the advocate pleading before a judge or jury, of the stump-speaker hurrying the minds of his auditors, of the pulpiteer trying to promote religion by logic, of fanatics forcing their notions upon the public, and sometimes of judges fortifying their decisions.

Yet it is a thing from which we can not escape in our intellectual life. Moreover it is infinitely valuable if only it be used with the utmost precaution, and with a prevailing critical sense. There are true anologies as well as false ones. But the true are not easy to discover, while the false and the merely apparent, are as numerous and as unreal as the vaporous faces that stare at us out of the clouds.

My correspondent says that he proposes his theory of the analogy of life to a radio ray only to provoke thought; and for that purpose it is very good. One may also say that it is alluring. But it is, in its nature, typical of speculations that float half-formed through the minds of multitudes of men and women, who wonder what life and death are, and how they change into one another as they seem to do. The impossibility of attaining a firmly settled opinion on this subject by the observational methods of science, or the metaphysical reasonings of philosophy, causes thousands who find themselves unable to take a firm hold upon pure faith to continue to strive after some form of religious belief. Man can not shake off the thought that death is not an end but a curtain.

Domenico Cimarosa.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

One of the most prominent composers of the Italian dramatic school was Domenico Cimarosa. He was born at Aversa, near Naples, on December 17, 1749, the son of poor parents. Orphaned early in life, he was sent to the charity school of the Minorites, his first music teacher being the organist of the monastery. His talent was so great that he obtained a free scholarship in the Conservatorio di S Mario di Loreto, where he was taught singing, counterpoint and composition. Here Cimarosa remained for eleven years.

At the age of twenty-three, Cimarosa wrote his first opera comique called "Le Stravaganza del Conte" which was first performed in Naples in 1772.

This composition was followed in the same year by another comic opera. Both of these proving successful, the young composer was invited to Rome in 1774 to write an opera. Here he produced a third comic opera "L'Italiana de Londra."

During the next thirteen years, Cimarosa's life was rather uneventful. He wrote a number of operas and traveled extensively through Italy. From 1784 to 1787 he lived in Florence, where he wrote exclusively for the theater of that city.

On the return of Paisello from St. Petersburg, Cimarosa was invited by Catherine II to take his place. His journey to Russia was something in the way of a triumphal tour. During his stay in Russia, he produced three operas and wrote an enormous number of pieces d'occasion. Every effort was made to induce Cimarosa to remain in Russia, but not being able to stand the rigors of the climate he left Russia in the latter part of 1792 and went to Austria. Here he was appointed kappellmeister in the court of Leopold II at a salary of 12,000 florins. Returning to Naples he produced his masterpiece "Il Matrimonio Segreto" which still survives.

The latter period of Cimarosa's life was most unhappy, embittered as it was by the intrigues and jealousies of his enemies. During the occupation of Naples by the French, he was condemned to death, but influential friends had his sentence commutted to banishment.

He went to Venice, where he died on January 11, 1801. It was rumored that he had been poisoned, but the Pope's body physician, who was sent to perform an autopsy, determined he had died from natural causes. — Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 3—Thoughts while strolling—A maid pinning a rose on a policeman. Cowboys from the Liggett ranches. Quite a number are using Argentine co-respondents this season. Those boys who talk in elevators about market winnings. And the inarticulate who can only say "O. K."

Dean Cornwell, a Louisville, Kentucky, boy, who made good in the city. The hub-bub around a railroad terminal. Bedizened with hotels and pullulating—do you care for that? —with tourists. More signs that you can't do this and you can't do that. Oh, to live with no meddling restrictions and a jug of wine or something or other.

Antiseptic lipsticks. That irritating stride of athletic girls. Military chauffeurs who receive orders with a salute and click of heels and do as they please. A hatless Chinese with horn-rimmed glasses. A little old lady scolds a newsboy for swearing. And he blushes.

The hotels advertised as home-like, where you are known as numbers. Eva Steinmetz, the fashion designer. Cops who ride around in flivvers and always seem huffy about something. Commercial candour: "We do not sell anything to our customers until we are sold on it ourselves."

Fat women who hold their hands over the dials of weight machines. An alert dignity about New York bank employes. The mournful wail of a crate of bawling calves. Poor little fellers. Over dressed girls chewing gum. Underfed men who pay the bills. Mark Hellenger, the tabloid columnist.

The king of old shoe savers has been found. He is a New Yorker who could afford a half dozen pairs of new shoes every day. Yet in moving from one mansion to be torn down to a $300,000 co-operative apartment it was found he has 316 pairs of old shoes. He is a heavy donor to charity but is miserly when it comes to parting with discarded boots. There is some inherent kink in almost every man that makes giving old shoes away a distinct personal loss. It has caused more family quarrels than any domestic difference save drink and money. Don't ask how I know.

The most embarrassing incident in a life of embarrassments took place on a street corner this morning. A man I had not seen in a number of years stopped to shake hands. The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A business predictor says we are going to see renewed prosperity and he forecasts the disappearance of the presidential year nightmare. The tradition that a presidential election year is a bad year for business may not be serious enough to be called a nightmare, but it surely should be laid forever among the discarded myths of the republic. Now that both political parties are in practical agreement on the fundamentals of government and policy, nothing terrible is going to happen to the United States of America no matter who is elected president. If we recognize that obvious fact we can find no cause for any depression of business this year.

There must be no rolling pin championship in America. It is a dangerous idea. The Boston Post prints the picture of a Washington woman who claims the record as a rolling pin thrower with a toss of fifty-six feet and three inches. Comes now a Massachusetts woman who says she can throw a rolling pin without handles, weighing two pounds, fifty-seven feet underhand and fifty feet overhand. With a handle in one end she says she can throw it sixty-five feet underhand and eighty feet overhand. Here is a situation that men must do something about. If necessary they must invoke the aid of state legislatures or the federal government in a desperate attempt to declare rolling pin practice unconstitutional. Suppose women should add accuracy to distance.

Hanging the criminal or burning him up in the electric chair comes too late to do the individual who was wronged by the crime much good. It comes too late to do the state or society much good. It is true there is too much sloppy pity wasted on morons and the vicious when they fail to control their impulses and habits and enter on a career of crime. There is doubtless plenty of humanitarianism and to spare in prisons. The fact is, however, that a much wiser generation that will come after us—we hope—will spend more time and more brains studying crime and its causes and less time on methods of punishment. Whether the criminal is locked up for life or snapped out at the end of a rope is a mere incident in current history.

In the study of crime and criminals we should do away with fears and tears. The question must be faced in the calm, cold, analytical manner of the true scientist. Between the sob sisters and their equally sobby brothers who think a jail should be a summer hotel and criminals should be fed on tea, cake, and champagne, and their hard-headed compatriots who believe that a chicken thief ought to be electrocuted, there must be some middle ground of common sense.

-o- The New Book -o-

By FRANCES JENNINGS

THE concluding volume of the Forsyte saga and the novel in which we bid farewell for all time to that grand old English gentleman, Soames Forsyte, his creator, John Galsworthy, has appropriately called Galsworthy, has appropriately called the "Swan Song". The death of Soames Forsyte and the title of the book are sufficient indications that Galsworthy has finished with the Forsyte group forever. The fortunes of Fleur and Michael, daughter and nephew of Soames and of Jon and Anne, an earlier sweetheart of Fleur's and his new American wife, are by no means settled, and it is of these fascinating personalities that Galsworthy may choose to write in the future.

Galsworthy's last three novels, "The White Monkey," "The Silver Spoon" and "Swan Song" belong to the post war period and the action revolves around such modern figures as Fleur and Michael Mont and Jon Forsyte in contrast to old Soames, the product of an earlier generation.

In the "Swang Song" it is Fleur, an interesting but not too admirable specimen of the younger generation, who precipitates the tragedy which brings about Soames' death. Although married to Michael she retains her love of Jon and throughout the volume does her best to concentrate his interest upon her own selfish but delightful self at the sacrifice of his young American wife. Soames watches her with a father's loving interest throughout this crisis and it is to save her life that he forfeits his own.

The same careful picture of a difficult age, the same easy flow of English prose, and the same honest characters at full length with a scattering of Galsworthy's earlier book will be found in this his last and greatest Forsyte novel.

"REAL IDEAL" CALLED GREATEST GESTE NOVEL

WHAT its publishers announce as the "greatest of the three Geste novels" has just appeared on the mid-summer book-lists. The new book is "Beau Ideal" by Percival Christopher Wren, the widely-known author of "Beau Geste" and "Beau Sabreur." It is the story of an American Otis Vanbrugh, in the French Foreign Legion.

Major Wren, chronicler of the French Foreign Legion, is a veteran of three armies, the British Cavalry corps, the Indian Army in East Africa, and the French Foreign legion.

Having seen active service in the four corners of the globe, Major Wren has known how to crystalize in his stories the life of the ordinary Legionnaire, the adventure, deeds of daring on hot desert sands, the monotony and suffering in far outposts of the Legion, and the inevitable alternating between reckless gayety and utter despair. Many of his characters are taken from life, as are incidents of the stories.

Press the Pedal and oil your car

Motor cars of high price, such as the Rolls Royce, prize Bijur centralized chassis lubrication as an invaluable feature.

Nash, at moderate price, has it as standard equipment on all "400" Advanced Six Models.

Bijur operation is simplicity itself—and it is invariably efficient regardless of changes in temperature.

Simply depress it once and 21 points are automatically oiled, including all spring shackles.

Bother and expense of service station lubrication are eliminated.

Wear at vital chassis points is avoided.

Annoying squeaks and groans are stopped before they start.

The world has a new and finer motor car, with features of excellence hitherto found only on very costly cars. Bijur Centralized Chassis Lubrication is one of them.

thing to come one day and sweep them together, raise them above all commonness, all earthly considerations as by soaring wings? Could this happen?

Or was Frances right; that there were no chances really; only human beings travelling on different ways that ran parallel?

Her father did not think so. Indirectly, because of this, he had died. Or was that only Agnes' belief and not her own at all?

She was becoming a little puzzled about this lately. Sometimes when she walked along the River road, saw the stately villas and luxury there she felt a stinging resentment curling in some depth of her where it hurt.

Over in a second it was, yet strangely like the fleck of a lash on shrinking flesh. She fancied it leaving a scar, red and angry.

Frances, keenly intuitive, suspected this. "You're working too hard, Em my dear. Fatigue opens the ways for all sorts of weird fancies. Why not take a little vacation?"

But Emily felt she couldn't go away. The balance in the bank was growing slowly. With her own shop she would be on a different basis.

She thought of this a great deal, especially when Marty wandered up of an evening and sat in the porch swing. She often saw him walking with Anne Morrow, but she cared nothing about that. It kept him away from herself.

She feared, some way, to think of Kingdon Coles. He would be a sort of compromise of all her problems but she didn't like compromises. She was naturally honest.

And she knew she didn't love Coles.

"Like him—oh, yes," she would tell herself. "It's pleasant to have someone as grand as he is in love with you. Can't help feeling sort of proud when he leaves those others, the artists and writers and the Russian woman, because I'm there. But—"

She would remember a tall boy bending toward her in the moonlight, laughing eyes turning serious all at once and a voice saying her name.

A memory; a radiant fancy. But it had taught her what love could be. An incident probably forgotten by Kent Rossiter but one which would change all her life.

The newspaper began to print long accounts of grandeur. For the wedding there would be an altar of white orchids; Miss Rossiter was giving her bridesmaids bracelets of star-sapphires; the most famous orchestra in America would play the march.

The bridal gown was coming direct from Paris but the veil would be old lace worn by many generations of Rossiter brides.

There it was again, Emily reflected. Not only wealth but ancestry. Your great-great-grandmother made you somebody. If blue ran in your veins you could get away with anything, even a love affair with a Nolan, and be married afterward like this.

Mrs. Briggs brought over one of the cakes from a pre-wedding festivity and told a shocked tale of the bride-elect.

"She says to the Mister she'd be damned—excuse me Mrs. Day, dear—an' she'd not go through with it. An' he says, 'Very well, it's that or the ranch,' meanin' his place out west somewhere, mind you.

"She took on somethin' terrible but she'll be married all right.

"An' didn't the Grainger baggage step up a-grinnin'. 'Buck up, ol' thing,' says she, tough-like. 'A married lady can get away with murder these days,' says she."

Emily thought, curiously, "Why, it isn't a wedding at all! It's just a beautiful play they go through, everyone doing a part, meaning nothing by it. Nothing fine in that. And I've been sort of envying her. Well—"

The next day the Lyall Star said Kent had come home to be Van Alstyne's best man.

Emily caught sight of his name as the paper lay folded on the news stand and her heart went pounding into her throat. She fumbled for coins, put them down with her fingers shaking—carried the paper home.

When she had locked her door she read the item again. Only a line or two; young Mr. Rossiter would leave directly after the wedding for Paris where he was entering the Sorbonne. He had been absent from Lyall, excepting for short visits, nearly six years. . . .

He was coming—he was coming! Would she see him, perhaps? Catch a glimpse of him one day as he went past the shop? Would he know her if they came face to face?

She said "Oh"—dimly, and clipped the item. The Japanese box was nearly filled now! She thought that she must get a larger one soon.

On the night of the wedding she coaxed Kitten to walk out the River road. There were guards by the gateway at Highcliffe and little could be seen save people moving past lighted windows.

Others watched from across the street, and the girls stopped there. They heard the wedding march quite clearly; Emily thought, "Now he is waiting by the altar—" "Now he is giving them the ring—" "Now he is smiling—"

Kitten grumbled, "Gee, wish we could get a look at her. Eight bridesmaids!"

"Oh—bridesmaids—"

Eventually motors rolled away and the watchers went too. For better or worse, till death—or divorce—did them part, Aris Rossiter and Dirk Van Alstyne were married now. The pageant was over.

"That's that. C'mon, Em, what you waiting for? Nothing in your young life what's going on over there."

"No, nothing in my young life."

Colored stockings are a much older fashion than most people think. As long ago as the fourteenth century hose of two colors—white and red, black or blue—were much worn. They were made of cloth or other material; it was two centuries later before knitted stockings were introduced into this country.

Beauty culture is a very old art. Even in Ancient Rome women dieted to "reduce," wore tight corsets and used false teeth and false hair.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

It was Friday when me and Jubilee woke up this morning, and then I felt to see if there was any lump left on my forehead where I shot myself with my slingshot, and there wasn't, and my big toe and my other heel are well, so then I got to thinking about schooldays and how glad it would be that this was Friday if it wasn't vacation, because then the next day would be Saturday and then there wouldn't be no school.

A fella certainly misses a lot of holidays by its being vacation. Then I thought of how the Lost Bag of Tripe and Red had upsetted my mother and I hopped out of bed and let Jubilee down by his rope and put my short britches on and went down to milk the dummed brutes and paint Red and the Lost Bag of Tripe, but I got to thinking the Lost Bag of Tripe had done me a favor when he painted Red's father with the mushmellon, because Red's father had gave me a rotten mellon, and I couldn't blame Red for painting the Lost Bag of Tripe for painting his father, nor I couldn't blame Red for dodging around my mother when he was trying to get away, so I guess my mother was just out of luck. I bet Red's father has found out that he can't give me a rotten mushmellon and get away with it.

My ant told me to stop inhaling my corn off the cob last night. She said I would get my lungs full of corn and it would sprout on me if I didn't watch out. There is very few little boys can please grownups by eating like they do. I asted my ant if she begretched me everything I et, and I got sent to bed for it.

Today I had to come back from the pasture and take care of Annabelle Lee, so Younise said to lets take her over to her house, and the Lost Bag of Tripe went home and got his kid brother and brang him over there, and he had Younise's kitten which she has named after me, and Annabelle Lee took the kitten out of his arms and gave his face a push and knocked him down the steps so hard it almost jarred his front tooth out, and I told her she ought to be ashamed of herself and to give the kitten to him, so he was crawling up the steps and she hauled off and flang it at him and hit him in the face, and it grabbed his face to keep from falling and scratched him everywhere from the ears forward.

The Lost Bag of Tripe started home with him and when he got outside of the yard he called me a name, and when I got after him he had to put his kid brother down to run, and he had to go home and get his mother to get his baby back. She said she would tell my mother on me. I didn't get to play ball all day on account of having a kid sister. Just like that was my fault.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Womans Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Supplies Mary Harrison with Funds

"We'D better hustle back," Dicky said as he put Mary's check book and bank book in his breast pocket, "we don't want Mary to get any ideas into her head. Now you don't need to do any falsifying, direct or tacit, about this. Just leave it to me. My conscience is so weatherbeaten, a mark or two more won't matter in the least. Besides, we have no choice. We simply must know what she's up to."

My common sense agreed with him, but some deeper feeling rebelled. I knew, however, that there was no course for me but silence, and I kept to it strictly when after the return of the young girls from the soda fountain, Dicky said with a casual air:

"I telephoned Katie just now, Kit cat, and she promised to 'turn house upside down' to find your case and keep it for you."

Marion laughed delightedly at Dicky's mimicry—from her childhood Lillian's young daughter has been a whole audience in herself for his drollery — but Mary's laughter while prompt was distinctly forced to initiated ears.

"Thank you so much, Uncle Dicky," she said. "I do hope Katie won't have a hard time finding it."

"I told her you probably dropped it in the hall," Dicky replied, "so she'll look there first. But prithee fair maid, step a pace aside with me. I would have speech with thee. 'Scuse, please. Underwood clan!"

Her eyes were questioning as Dicky took her arm and drew her aside, gesturing to me to come with them. But my attention for the moment had been switched from Mary. I had seen the quick resentment flame in Marion Morton's eyes at Dicky's tacit inclusion of her in the "Underwood clan" and realized that she still was cherishing the aversion to her stepfather which was making her mother so unhappy.

"I understand," Dicky began pompously, but keeping his voice low, "that there is a sartorial buying orgy to be staged today. Now I had a piece of luck last week and this bill is just scorching my pockets until it is spent — the most troublesome piece of mazuma I ever handled. You'll be doing me a favor if you'll take it, and blow yourself to some dresses or stockings or hats or whatever you'd like most in the clothes line."

In quick flashing succession Mary's eyes mirrored startled incredulity, irrepressible joy and sober doubt of her right to accept her uncle's generous offer. She reached out her hand to take the bill, then suddenly drew it back again.

"Oh, Uncle Dicky," she gasped, "A hundred dollars, to spend on clothes! I mustn't take it."

"Why not?" Dicky demanded with mock truculence. "Am I not your uncle? Has anybody a better right to hand you a century? Or are you afraid it's tainted money? I pledge you my knightly honor that I did not receive it because of my prowess in either bootlegging or gambling."

Mary laughed nervously and I saw her eyes fixed avidly on the bill, knew that already her girlish imagination was racing over the fripperies which could be bought with it. Dicky caught her hand, put the bill in her palm and folded her fingers over it.

"Let us have no more nonsense," he said authoritatively. "Put that in your purse, and be mightily careful you don't lose it. At that, I think you'd better turn it over to Mrs. Underwood as a banker. I would have handed you a roll of smaller ones but the man who cashed this check didn't have enough small bills to make up a hundred. There's only one thing I'm going to ask you. I want you to show me the things you buy. I want to be sure you spend every cent of it for your own clothes. No treating mind—or yes—you can take a beer out for blowing in on treats to eats, if you want to."
